- COVID-19 budget updates were presented and specifically the council discussed the President of the Florida Senat, Senator Bill Galvano's, memorandum which discussed the health of state reserves to continue support for the items on the current year budget. In May, general revenue collection data as well as analytics from both HIS and Moody's will allow state economists to begin the formal revision of general revenue estimates for fiscal year 2020-21. Council discussed that changes (including any decrease related to the impact of COVID-19) to state allotted allocations for the university may not be known until the state budget is passed for the upcoming year which is likely to be delayed due to 2020 being an election year. The Provost's office has informed the college deans to prepare for at least 5% reductions allocated for state funding.

-The council adjourned with discussion of the fall agenda to include: Sustainability and Divestment (and inviting Andrew Winden, UF Associate Professor of Law); review of any updates to faculty retirement and healthcare plans; and updates on the university's
