Courses listed above, as listed in UF catalog, are regularly offered and taken by anthropology majors. These courses re-inforce 'core' practice and theory in anthropology, in varying ways. Assessment is typically by in-class exams and papers graded by instructor-based rubric (and evaluated by Undergraduate Curriculum Committee). Assessment of a sample of upper-level elective courses, by subfield, will also be by ungraded 'survey' of majors prior to conclusion of select courses taken (courses marked 'A'). This should target anthropology major's 'success' with respect to articulated SLO's.
