Course Description:
Islam in Africa provides an overview over the development of Muslim societies in Africa from early history (7th century) to the present with a regional focus on North Africa, the Sahara, sub-Saharan West Africa, the Horn of Africa, and East Africa. The course will examine processes of Islamization and the emergence of local Muslim cultures, contemporary issues, and will expose students to the diversity of Islam in Africa. At the same time, the course will focus on current issues in contemporary African Islam, and aims at providing students with skills to assess issues common to many African Muslim societies, such as dynamics of religious reform, Islam and the state, Islam and socio-economic developments, and questions related to ethnic and religious identities.

General Education Objectives and Learning Outcomes
This course is an International subject area course in the UF General Education Program. International courses provide instruction in the values, attitudes, and norms that constitute the contemporary cultures of countries outside the United States. These courses lead students to understand how geographic location and socioeconomic factors affect these cultures and the lives of citizens in other countries. Through analysis and evaluation of the students’ own cultural norms and values in relation to those held by the citizens of other countries, they will develop a cross-cultural understanding of the rest of the contemporary world.

A student who successfully completes this course will be able to:
1. Map out and identify the main processes in the history of Islam in Africa
2. Analyze the different trajectories and factors involved for processes of Islamization in Africa
3. Identify the variety found within Islam in Africa
4. Apply relevant theoretical perspectives and analyze the intersection of African Islam with social, political, and cultural issues
5. Critically analyze interrelations between Islam and other religions in Africa
6. Identify, compare, and analyze main currents within contemporary African Islam

At the end of this course, students will be expected to have achieved the following learning outcomes in content, communication and critical thinking:

- Content: Students demonstrate competence in a variety of concepts, theories and methodologies related to religious studies and other intersecting discipline in order to grasp the topics discussed in the course. Students will acquire a basic knowledge of historical developments, contemporary dynamics, as well as the role of Islam in relation to broader societal and political processes. Achievement of this learning outcome will be assessed through three response papers and through in-class participation.

- Communication: Students communicate knowledge, ideas and reasoning clearly and effectively in written and oral forms appropriate to the topics covered in the course. Students are expected to actively participate in class discussions during the semester, and will in addition do an in-class presentations on selected topics + acting as discussants for other’s presentations in-class presentation. Students are also expected to be able to communicate their ideas in their three response papers. Achievement of this learning outcome be assessed through evaluation (grading) of the written papers and of the presentations – paying attention to ability to present arguments in a coherent manner. Participation grades will reflect how well a student communicates during these tasks.

- Critical Thinking: Students analyze information carefully and logically from multiple perspectives, using discipline-specific methods, and develop reasoned solutions to problems. Students will prepare three essay responses to topics pertaining to the different topics covered in the course. Students will critically evaluate empirical data and how they are theoretically framed, and be able to draw connections between different empirical cases covered in the course. Achievement of this learning outcome will be assessed by three response papers and by how they perform in discussions during classes.

Course Requirements and Grading Criteria

The final grade will be determined by the total scored for:

- Attendance (10 %). We will circulate an attendance sheet, which you should sign. Signing for others is considered Academic dishonesty.
- Participation / In-class presentations (15 %)
- 3 Response papers (25 % each)

Active Participation and In-class presentations: Students are expected to attend ALL classes and participate actively in class discussions. Active and informed participation demands that students read the material carefully before coming to class. In-class presentations mean that you do 10-min presentations on selected topics + acting as discussants for other’s presentations.

3 Response Papers (6-7 pp): These response papers will address key issues and methodological and theoretical questions raised in the readings, lectures and class discussions. The objective of these papers is to encourage students to read the materials closely and articulate their own informed and analytically nuanced positions. This means that the students have to go beyond a mere description of the topics at hand, and the paper will be evaluated based on the student’s ability to think independently, critically, and to make connections with other relevant material. The more you engage the reading, the more likely you will receive a high mark. The format for the papers is 1.5 line space / font size 12.

Writing Requirement

This course confers 4000 words towards the Writing Requirement (WR), which ensures students both maintain their fluency in writing and use writing as a tool to facilitate learning. While helping students meet the broad learning outcomes of content, communication, and critical thinking, the instructor will evaluate and provide feedback on students’ written assignments with respect to grammar, punctuation, clarity, coherence, and organization. Course grades have two components. To receive Writing Requirement credit, a student must receive a grade of C or higher and a satisfactory completion of the writing component of the course.

Course Requirements and Grading Criteria – Graduate Section

The graduate students will follow the lectures for the course, do the readings for each lecture and submit the assigned papers. In order to get the course registered as a graduate course, there are, however, some additional work as listed below.

In addition to the 3 response papers and the presentation, you will have 3 assignments which we will decide upon together. The assignment is to write a review1 of book(s) and articles/chapters – organized under different segments. The review will be more than a synopsis of the work, and will be evaluated according to whether you are able to critically analyze and evaluate the work. The review of the books shall be 5-6 pages (for each book) and the review of articles/chapters shall be 2-3 pages (for each article/chapter). The format for the papers is 1.5 line space / font size 12. You will also meet with me 3 times (1/2 hour) during the semester to discuss the readings and assignments. These meetings will be during my office hours, and you should email me in advance with your questions and/or the texts which you would like me to comment on.

The final grade will be determined by the total scored for:

- Attendance (10 %). We will circulate an attendance sheet, which you should sign. Signing for others is considered Academic dishonesty.
- Participation / In-class presentations (15 %)
- 5 papers (15 % each)

Make-ups and Attendance:

Make-up exams and tests will only be allowed in unavoidable circumstances or for compelling reasons that can be convincingly documented. Similarly, absence(s) will detract points except unavoidable ones proven with satisfactory explanation/documentation.

Student Honor Code:

As a UF student, you have agreed to follow the university’s Honor Code, meaning you will not give or receive unauthorized assistance in completing assignments. Violations can result in failing an exam, paper or the course. For more information, see: http://www.dso.ufl.edu/studentguide/studentrights.php. On all work submitted for credit by University of Florida students, the following pledge is implied, “On my honor, I have neither given nor received unauthorized aid in doing this assignment.” Please note that acts of plagiarism include:

- Turning in a paper or assignment that was written by someone else.
- Copying verbatim a sentence or paragraph of text from the work of another author without proper citation and quotation marks.
- Paraphrasing or restating in your own words, text or ideas written by someone else without proper citation.

For more info, see http://www.registrar.ufl.edu/catalog/policies/students.html

Disabilities:

1 A review is more than a synopsis; it entails giving your (argued) opinions on the text
“If you are a student with a disability and would like to request disability-related accommodations, you are encouraged to contact me and the Disability Resource Center as early in the semester as possible. The Disability Resource Center is located in 001 Building 0020 (Reid Hall). Their phone number is 392-8565.”
